New Headmaster launches Women of Influence Lecture Series

The Women of Influence Lecture Series is just one of a number of new initiatives already launched by the new Headmaster at Francis Holland School, Regent's Park. Mr Charles Fillingham, formerly Deputy Head at City of London School for Boys, joined in January 2016 as the first Headmaster in the school's 138 year history.

The new programme of female speakers provides a statement of his commitment to share the experiences of a wide range of women in a variety of careers with pupils of all ages at FHS.

Mr Charles Fillingham, said, "The global workplace is rapidly changing and we want to give girls the opportunity to find out about many career options. These are inspirational women who have a wealth of experience to share and we are delighted they have joined our programme."

Speakers include authors, journalists, university lecturers, actors, MPs and a Judge. The first speaker was Rachel Campbell-Johnston, author of 'The Child's Elephant' and chief art critic for The Times, who helped students celebrate World Book Day on Thursday 3rd March. Rachel captivated an audience of over forty students with her inspirational stories and tips on how to think like a writer.

Francis Holland achieved its best ever A level results this summer with 90.2% A*-B and 62.7% A*-A grades. Every year pupils go on to top UK and US universities reading a range of subjects from humanities through to the sciences.
