

To Kill A Mockingbird

by Harper Lee

Plot

The plot of this book is that a young, black man called Tom Robinson is accused of attacking a white child call Mayella. However, the narrator of the book is a girl call Scout who goes around the town spending time with her brother Jem and friend Dill.

What did you think of the book?

I thought it was an amazing book with outstanding literary phrases however towards the end it started to get a little intense and a bit sad. Especially the bit when Jem and Scout were nearly murdered.

What was the best bit?

I think the best bit of 'To kill a Mockingbird' was the court case and how excellent Atticus handles the pressure in court even though he was really tired .

Who would you recommend this book to and why?

I would recommend this book to people aged 12+ and anyone who doesn't find things to emotional or stressful because some can be quite deep and intense.
