

GCSE LEAGUE TABLES

How to read the league tables

The Daily Telegraph league tables are created using data supplied by the Independent Schools Council. Around 50 schools boycott the tables, which means that not every school is listed and, for reasons of space, we have limited the results on these pages to the top 200 as at August 2014. For accuracy, the main rankings also exclude schools entering fewer than 25 candidates. A fuller version of these tables is available at telegraph.co.uk/education.

The GCSE and A-level tables rank schools by the proportion of entries graded A* or A. Please note: the A-level table includes the International Baccalaureate (IB) and the Cambridge Pre-U as equivalent qualifications.

For the purposes of the league tables, Levels 7 and 6 at IB and Distinction 1, 2, 3 and Merit 1 at Pre-U are equivalent to A* and A at A-level.

North London

Britain's top-performing schools are introducing pupils as young as 11 to AS-level courses as GCSEs are failing to stretch the brightest teenagers. North London Collegiate School in Ealing has dropped English literature in favour of an AS-level course.

The disclosure was made as the school was nominated for the country for performance of 16-year-olds, with almost 100 per cent of exams graded A* and 86pc awarded elite
